AISG Moves Headquarters in New York, NY

College Point, NY - June 7th 2017 - American Integrated Security Group (AISG), North America's fastest growing full service security integrator, is proud to announce the transition to its new headquarters in College Point, NY, the northernmost section of Queens with sweeping views of the Manhattan skyline and just a stone's throw away from Laguardia Airport. The New York headquarters is one of six AISG regional offices across the United States.

The new AISG headquarters signifies an expansion in operations due to the increased demand for top end security solutions in the Northeast as well as greater North America. The increased size of the NY headquarters will allow AISG to broaden the reach of vertical markets it serves all well as strengthen the success in place with existing ones. From Airport to Education and everything in between, AISG is the premier destination for integrated security in North America.

"We are extremely excited about this change, it will allow us to better serve our current clientele while simultaneously reaching new markets. Since our inception over 10 years, we have always welcomed positive change, and this move is no different. Our expansion represents our continued rapid growth in this industry" said AISG president, Levy Acs.

With regional offices in California, Florida, Ohio, Texas (2) and our newest transition in New York, we look forward to working with you from our headquarters located conveniently at:
